Dear Dexter's Laboratory:

I had fun reading both stories in issue #13 of DEXTER'S LABORATORY. The suggestion of humor is way beyond Dexter's capabilities. He tries way too hard to be funny. His brain creates words that are way too complex, like "pachyderm." I scurried to my dictionary to figure out what the little genius was talking about.

Dexter trying to get his funny bone to work was the funniest part to me. Situations like Dee-Dee being awestruck by turning on a flashlight in her own eyes and thinking it was stunning; family picture on the living room wall with Dexter having some sort of receiver device coming out of the top of the young scientist's head; Dexter falling on a banana peel—all were hilarious.

Thank goodness Dexter is a cartoon character. He was funny without even trying. Dexter may have to go back to his lab and create elbow grease. Then he might be able to get more chuckles out of his funny bone.

The second story caused a real memory problem. I guess now that his lab's gone "KA-BOOM," Dexter will have plenty of time to play with Dee-Dee and Dancing Dolly. He should quickly call Mandark. Mandark would love to share time with Dee-Dee while Dexter goes about fixing his lab.

The picture of "Dexter" with the antenna coming out of his head was actually a picture of the robot Dexter from DEXTER'S LABORATORY #3, when Dexter made a robot of himself to help with his chores. As for Dexter calling Mandark for help with Dee-Dee, we'll just remind you of the last time Dexter asked Mandark for help in DEXTER'S LABORATORY #2. Need we say more?

Dear Dexter's Laboratory:

My all-time favorite, most hilarious cartoon has to be the episode of Dexter's Laboratory when Dee-Dee kept forgetting what to say. Dexter keeps telling Dee-Dee "You are stupid, you are stupid!" and "Don't forget!" There were all those little Mandark heads trying to eat the earth, but everyone is okay because Dee-Dee doesn't like Mandark. She didn't want to see him. Computris was in this one too, but not Mom and Dad. There was a laser too, but it's broken. That was the best one. And I want to buy it right now! I even saved up all my money for it and everything. So do you know where I can get it? Please! I need to watch it every day.

DEXTER'S LABORATORY episodes are slowly being released to the mass market. Give it some time, and maybe you'll get your wish. Meanwhile, what did you think of the comic?

Dear DC Comics & Cartoon Network,

I love the Dexter cartoons, and you're doing a great job on the comic books, too!!! You're absolutely the best. Will there be any action figures or Dexter DVDs soon? I'd love to have the "Ego Trip" video on DVD. Keep up the good work!

Dexter's "Ego Trip" on video and DVD hit the stores on November 7! I'm sure you've got your copy already.

next issue:

In three new stories, Dexter uses mad science to make toys come with batteries, get his gloves on the TV remote, and stop humming the catchy ditty in his head! Written by Andy Merrill, Brett Lewis and James Denning; art by John Delaney, Eduardo Savid, Matt Jenkins, Gary Fields, and Jeff Albrecht; cover by Bill Wray.

Other DC Kids' Titles:

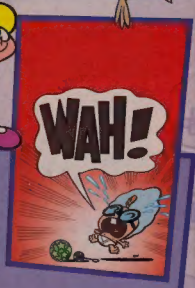

Scooby-Do #42: Scooby and Shaggy go to Mexico for a freaky festival; plus, when a town's too terrified to take out the trash, the gang hunts a dumpster monster!

Looney Tunes #79: Watch the fur and feathers fly when Taz and Daffy both run for President. Elmer teams up with Yosemite Sam in the jungle, and Foghorn takes a mixed-up pup under his wing!

Cartoon Network Starring #17: Johnny tries to play cowboy at a rodeo and causes more problems than Jaws at a day by the seashore! PLUS: A bonus story featuring the comics debut of Cartoon Network's newest, funniest and woolliest hero: "Sheep in the Big City," from the all-new Cartoon Network series premiering this month!

The Powerpuff Girls #9: What evil lurks in the waters off Townsville — and however will the Girls stop it when it slithers onto dry land? Plus, Bubbles' love for gum gets her in a sticky situation!

This issue's cover by Bill Wray.
